Off to the Mines

We hear every day of the preparations of men in this vicinity and up the valley, to go to the mines, at the first opening of spring, and we are very sorry for it Oregon is not by any means crowded with farmers or mechanics, and every one now here may be sure of more profitable and steady employment at home than he can reasonably expect to obtain East of the mountains There is abundant reason to believe that the demand for all sorts of produce during the coming year, will be much greater than the supply, unless our farmers at once abandon the wild schemes that lead them away from the regular business, which they understand, into speculations and hardships, that invariably cost more than they yield There are plenty of men who are foot loose, whose business is unsettled and irregular and who can lose nothing that concerns the public welfare —let such go to the mines, and we hope prosperity will abound antly attend them but we do not want to see the bone and sinew of the State—those who must developе its resources, and magnify its wealth—who must build our houses, and give to us the conveniences that flow from mechanical skill—we do not want to see such helps to civilization and producers of wealth, running away on a wild goose chase for the uncertain products of the mines We would not say a word to dissuade them from doing so if we supposed there was any doubt as to their being sure of greater ease and prosperity at home, for we are always glad to hear that anyone is doing what is lucrative, but when experience, now so often repeated, has taught in the most decided terms that less than one tenth of those who go to the mines bring back anything like what might have been earned with reasonable industry at home, we cannot help regretting the obstinate determination of so many to risk their health, comfort and prosperity in this most doubtful manner We trust that mechanics and farmers, who have a reasonable prospect at home, will calmly consider the subject, before they madly rush into the mining vortex, which will be very certain never to let them out, until they have paid too dearly for bitter and unprofitable experience

LOOKING AT THINGS.—" No truth is better understood and established, not only in this country but in all countries, than the fact that the Abolitionists are responsible for the war that is upon us, and for the dissolution of the Union "

That sentence is from the Oregon Democrat, of course/ No other paper has the news, and we suppose according to the quotation that everybody is mistaken in thinking that Southern rebels began the war or are in any degree responsible for it The general notion that Sumter was first attacked by them, must be an error; it was the wicked Abolitionists So as to the other forts and navy yards in the South, the black hearted Abolitionists did all the stealing What is the Democrat driving at? Does it think the South right in all things? Does it dare to say a word against secession, treason or traitors?

SINGULAR PHENOMENON.—We are informed by an intelligent and reliable citizen of Port Townsend, W T, who arrived on the steamship Pacific, that between two and three weeks since that locality was visited by a singular atmospheric phenomenon, which spread consternation among it inhabitants He says that in the course of twenty minutes, a large number of the citizens previously in good health, were attacked by a sickness which completely prostrated and obliged them to take to their beds The symptoms were felt by children and adults alike Dr C M O Brien, one of the best physicians on the Pacific coast, together with four members of his family, were among the victims of this contagion, which came to revel for two hours, when again many of those so stricken down recovered A few relapsed and their cases have been scrupulously attended, and were critical We learn that Dr O Brien gave it as his opinion that a repetition of the current of air—for so it seemed—would have been attended with all the dire consequences of a plague When our informant left no deaths had resulted from it

California Loyalty

We publish below the patriotic resolutions recently adopted by the Legislature of California They were introduced by Hon Thompson Campbell, formerly a distinguished Democrat, who does not seem to be afraid "when a free thought seeks expression, to speak it boldly" These are plain words—there is no dodging of any issue, but a square and manly endorsement of every leading measure of the Administration in its management of the war We hope the example thus given, will not be lost upon the loyal citizens our State, who ought to be glad to express similar confidence in the Government and like approval of the procession of patriotic actions which are marching along in majesty, and bearing the nation to a proud and holy victory over treason and slavery We beg our friends to read the resolutions and we ask those Union men, whose backbones are elastic and knees weak, whether a policy—declared in lofty and heroic tones like these is not likely to win more votes than one which hesitates to endorse any positive action of the Administration, for fear of driving away some Democrats, here and there

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring

1 That the people of the State of California are unqualifiedly loyal, and that we repudiate the political heresy of State supremacy when brought in conflict with the Federal authority holding that in the proper sphere but that in all National affairs the Constitution and the laws of the United States made in pursuance thereof and the supreme law of the land, and which no State can evade by legislation and civil decision or otherwise can be lawfully countenanced or acted upon although lately, during the unnatural conflict of which the people of this State are prepared to die rather than surrender

2 That the recent efforts of a few of the Southern slaveholding aristocracy against the democracy of the nation and in favor of slavery struck against the Government

3 That we endorse all the measures of the Administration and adopt it for the party motto of the present most wicked rebellion until it shall endorse the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia 2 We endorse the act confiscating from slavery all territory belonging to the United States 3 We endorse the Confiscation Act 4 We endorse the Conscription Act 5 We endorse the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus 6 We endorse the enlistment of negro soldiers to fight in our National armies 7 We endorse the noble stand taken by President Lincoln, to all persons near the White House and the Union cause to the entire satisfaction of the loyal people of the country 8 We endorse the loyal sentiment and the great heart of our noble Governor, and congratulate the people of the State upon the success the world has ever seen and which we pledge ourselves to defend and uphold 9 We endorse the policy of establishing military governments in their rebellious districts as necessary to enable the President to see that the laws thereof are faithfully executed 10 We endorse the Act calling Walter Colton into the Union and admitting him as the first star of freedom in that long dark night of bondage from which it has so gloriously risen, and in it we behold a second Bethlehem hailing the redemption of the nation to that blessed creation of liberty in which we see the destiny of Universal Emancipation

4 That we endorse the proclamation by the President of the United States of January 1 1863 declaring the slaves in all the territory which it covers free and we hold that its operation is not conditional upon the election of any territory by the National forces but that it is self-acting, and gives each slave at that time a clear title of freedom and puts power out of the reach of any duress or fraud, and that any other or further condition of bondage but we pledge ourselves to defend and support President Lincoln in his noble determination to maintain the rights and faith of the nation inviolate, as expressed in his late Message, which in many ways I shall not attempt to recite or modify the Emancipation Proclamation nor shall I return to slavery any person who is free by the terms of the proclamation or by any Act of Congress

5 That we indorse the plan of reconstruction as set forth in the proclamation of the President and in said Message 1 Because it establishes in the rebellious States no sanction but the national flag for that in any condition and it nullifies point for the organization of civil loyal men 2 Because it guards and protects the emancipated slave against the possibility of re-enslavement 3 Because it will enable the United States to practically guaranty to every loyal State to which it applies, a republican form of Government and to protect each of them against invasion 4 Because it points out a mode by which the loyal citizens of the rebellious States may return to their allegiance with the restoration of their rights, while it reserves the right to punish the guilty instigators and leaders of the rebellion for the great crime they have committed 6 Because it will provide for the support and protection of the freedmen of the rebellious territory, as a condition precedent for pardon and restoration of forfeited rights 7 Because it presents a mode by which the loyal authority over every loyal State Government may be established and the State thus restored to its place in the Union 8 Because it excludes the possibility of any peace which recognizes the existence of slavery, either present or future

6 That the proposition of the Copperhead members of Congress to send commissioners to Richmond to sue for peace from armed rebels and plead for their rights to eternal infamy, and we would trust with the accused traitor who shows himself a traitor should deserves a traitor's punishment California will accept no peace which is not based up on an unconditional surrender

7 That we indorse the proposition, now before Congress which has for its object the unconditional forfeiture of the property of rebels and that our Senators are hereby instructed and our members of Congress requested to vote for its adoption

8 That we tender to our gallant army and navy officers and men, the heartfelt thanks of the loyal people of the loyal State of California, for their glorious achievements for the renown which they have given to the American arms and we guarantee to them, that while they are fighting our battles, traitors at home shall not be permitted to deprive them of the least of their civil rights

9 That the President's proclamation of pardon as suspended in his Message, is limited to the people of the rebellious States, as therein specified, and has no application either to prisoners of war or to persons who have been tried convicted and sentenced by the Courts of the country

10 That the barbarous treatment of our prisoners by the rebels is without a parallel in the annals of civilization and should bring down upon them the execrations of the whole civilized world and we hail with delight the recent action of the Government in placing a like number of rebel prisoners under the jurisdiction of General Butler, that great rebel tamer and we earnestly invoke him to adopt such a system of retaliation as will force the barbarism of slavery to yield to the humane rules of civilized warfare

11 That in Abraham Lincoln President of the United States, we recognize purity of life singleness of purpose the fire seeing conscientious statesman, the all compromising unsullied patriot the man of whose life is the preservation of the Union and the restoration of peace upon the immutable and eternal foundation of freedom, and fearless only all at to his wise him blameless watchfulness, unselfish patriotism prompt action, and determination will to pursue the right and abandon the wrong, the people of these United States are indebted for the grand position which they this day occupy on the great map of nations that when we consider the fiery ordeal through which the man of the people has passed unscathed and unentangled, it must strengthen public confidence in him who did remain unscathed and that all who join cordiale and abide other a like patriot who have performed so well their several parts in this great drama the people all look to Abraham Lincoln as the instrument selected by Providence to lead their country in safety through all its perils and restore it again to a peaceful whole no element of discord at all to found

Resolved, That the Executive be requested to transmit copies of these resolutions to the Executive of the United States and to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress

THE TITANS OF AMERICA —A correspondent of the American Phrenological Journal says

While you have a picture of the Kentuckians Tennesseans West Virginians and Marylanders as being so huge and finely developed permit me to say that the true Titans of the race have escaped you entirely—men as large as, though not always symmetrical as Hercules, and possessing as despicable, physically speaking of course—mere dwarfs to whom the Highlanders are as a measure pigmies—men ranging from six feet three in height and a chest of forty inches in girth and seven feet in stature—men with backs like those of Milo, to whom the very general practice for the most part in their early life of bearing with the yoke at the plough, the wood-sled and other like and strenuous labors of this will bring a New Yorker to his knees in the first development of physical power which I ever saw or had any opportunity of observing

FATAL AFFRAY —Wm Grubbs, of King's Valley, Benton county, was killed by a man named Robinson, on the evening of the 18th inst, in a scuffle at the close of an animated conversation about the war The two men had been at work together during the day and were spending the evening at Grubbs' house, in company with the father of the murdered man and a Mr Long when all were engaged in a spirited discussion for some time, at the close of which the younger Grubbs and Robinson got into what at first appeared to be a friendly tussle, but which waxed angrily and they were separated Grubbs then said he was cut, and examination disclosed one in the abdomen and another in the thigh, the latter severing an artery from which the flow of blood resulted in death in half an hour Prior to the affray Robinson had a knife in his hand whittling, but it was not seen during the occurrence Robinson has been arrested and held in $1,000 bonds

Democratic Claim to Office

In one of his recent letters Orpheus C Kerr tells a good story of an interview between the President and a Democrat who wanted an office, because he was willing to support the Administration, if he could get one It is worth reading

A high mortality political chap from the Sixth Ward, having learned that there was a pressing clerical vacancy in the Treasury Department, sought a hasty interview with the "Honest Abe, as I says he

I for a member of our excellent National Democratic Organization which is at this moment eligible for office, on the score of far more true loyalty to the Union of our forefathers than can be found in any other organization of the present distracting period I will admit says the gushing chap, in a fine burst of honesty, that our Organization has done much for the sake of the South in times past, I will admit that we have sometimes sided with the dummy South for the sake of power But I will assert as this Cardiff chap with a bet he could, that our excellent Democratic Organization has at this moment no sympathy whatever, for the sake of itself in an Organization But now says the impressive chap mentally having heard the recent row from Sumter the excellent Organization of which I am a part, stands ready to rally at a moment's notice to the side of the Union and down is that side in a hurried to all the privileges of such gracious Death" Here the excited chap blushed a pigeon and his hair rose "Have you got a knife" says the Honest Abe, looking at the chap who was still trying to make edifying remarks upon his political views as he knew one generous man quite well, Fred Pudger who lived at Peoria Here the Honest Abe leaned away over the arm of his chair toward the attentive political chap and says he 'Pudger tells a fellow as much as would fill a four inch column, but I don't believe a single solitary word of it Pudger is a very good woman in her way, but she has the Honest Abe family—she is a very good woman in her way and I make points from Pudger as happy at home that he never dreams of straying from home without her permission Her temper, says the Honest Abe pausing, for a moment upon the soil of the nearest window—her temper spits of the useful nature to keep my friend Pudger and the children sufficiently warm all the year round and I don't think she ever called Joe Pudger an Old Fool except when something particularly more than ordinary was the matter with her and she was always doing something for Pudger's sake

Here the political chap rose at this moment seized with a sensible cramp but the Honest Abe only smiled pleasantly at the jack knife and went on

She is always doing something for Pudger's sake Did she buy a new dress it was for Pudger's sake, did she have a party and a quilting bee it was solely for the sake of Pudger, did she refuse to sell me for the fund of the heathen, it was solely on account of Mr Pudger But for strong as I am in this matter says the Honest Abe leaning back in disdain against the wall and scraping the sole of his left boot with his knife "her strong point was that she endured a great deal of suffering for Pudger's sake

Did she sprain her ankle on the relation, she would limp But she never let Pudger suffer for some sake, Pudger did she have a sick headache from drinking too much Young Hyson she would tie up her head in camphor and say 'Only see, Pudger how much I bear for my sake' Did she clutch cold from standing too long before a dry good shop window, she would send us in a dark room with a flannel stocking round her neck, murmuring 'I was a good ever to marry such a fool of a man as you be—but I am willing to suffer even this for your sake' In fact says the Honest Abe, commencing to cut his nails—in truth, that woman was always suffering for Pudger's sake, and Pudger himself to be a guilty man One day, I remember, my friend Pudger and his wife were going to Chicago to buy a new set of furs for Pudger's sake, and just as Pudger got comfortably nestled in his seat in the cars, the disturbing woman ate a lozenge, and says she I shan't go to Chicago Pudger, if you don't go out to the luggage car again, and make certain sure that that ill got all our baggage' Now Pudger had been out six times before to see about the same thing, says the Honest Abe, earnestly "he'd been out six times before, and began to feel wrathy, 'Our baggage' says he 'our baggage! Mrs Pudger Here my friend Pudger grew very red in the face, and says he 'I rather liked that, you know—OUR baggage'—two bonnet and trunks and covers, he looking to Mrs Pudger, three carpet bags and one rattle with steel lock, the property of Mrs P two handbooks and a green silk umbrella, belonging to Mary Ann Pudger, three shawls tied up in a newspaper and two baskets, owned by Mrs M P Pudger, one clean collar and a razor, carried by Jos Pudger OUR baggage Here my friend Pudger attempted to laugh sardonically behind his collar and came near going straight into apoplexy Would you believe it? says the Honest Abe, poking the political chap in the ribs with his jack knife "would you believe it? Mrs Pudger burst at once into bitter tears, and says she 'O, how hard too I think I should have to suffer in this way for my husband's sake" It wasn't long after that says the Honest Abe, lowering his tone, "at was not very long after that, when Mrs P took a difficult cold on her lungs from standing too long on the dock amongst a camp meeting for Pudger's sake, and was quite a very sick woman What particularly frightened my friend Pudger was, that she didn't say that it was for his sake for two whole days, and in his horror of mind he went and brought a clergyman to see her This clergyman, says the Honest Abe, with resources of manner this clergyman was not one of those sombre, forlorn pastors, who would make you think that it is a grievous thing to be a priest until your being, and for her rather inclined by his even cheerful manner that the only perpetual happiness as to be found in a life of pious mumstrations When the old sweet my friend Pudger to the bedside he talked cheerfully at the sick Mrs P and rubbed his hands and says he 'How do we find ourselves now, my dear Madam?' And without to die this fine morning' She answered him feebly says the Honest Abe, faintly she answered him feebly for she was very weak and she said that she feared she had not spent her life as she should, but trusted that the prayers she had breathed during the hours of pain would not be unanswered she added, she also, I feel that I owe suffer more than I have suffered for my intercession' she said The parson uttered the last words as the Honest Abe, The minister's wife just sniffed a little who had been standing near the door the very first time of surprise, suddenly gave a stifled brightened up with a look of intense joy, beckoned the clergyman to follow him into the kitchen and hastily danced down stairs and the parson hastily followed after her

The clergyman returned back in a short time and says he 'Are you mad sir? How do you know what will get well? Poor Pudger stooped upon the parson with a hiss that fairly frightened him says he 'Get well? Why of course she'll get well! Commenced to call me names for your ill Sunday-school' Here the parson abstractedly cut off the visitor's nose

After the parson had abstractedly cut off the visitor's nose he went up into the sick room and said to Pudger, 'Be comforted, my friend, I have been with your better half, and she says she will not suffer after this' Pudger looked up and says 'Thank God' Then suddenly sitting up the lynical thing put his hand upon her bosom and says 'You are Mrs Pudger, you are the rightful wife of Joe Pudger, you are the rightful mother of my friend Pudger's children' Then she looked at my friend Pudger and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the parson and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at me and says 'Pudger' Finally she looked at everything in the room and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the bedclothes and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the window and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the ceiling and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the floor and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the door and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the wall and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the fireplace and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the mantelpiece and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the clock and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the carpet and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the chairs and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the table and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the pictures and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the books and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the ornaments and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the curtains and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the blinds and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the shutters and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the doors and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the walls and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the ceiling and says 'Pudger' Then she looked at the floor

THE BEGINNING OF A GRAND WORK.—We are very glad to learn that Mr. Patton, the proprietor of the iron mines near Oswego, has made such arrangements with a company of farming capitalists and business men in Portland as will secure the immediate commencement of operations for smelting the ore and putting it into the market. The company have also purchased a portion of the claim of Mr. Durham, embracing a valuable water privilege, to be employed for furnace purposes, and at an early day will erect costly and well contrived works for carrying on their operations. Success to the new iron works! They are better than a gold mine.

INCREASED TRAVEL.—The agents of the People's Transportation Company report that a number of passengers and the amount of freight passing up and down the Willamette have been very much greater this season, so far, than during any previous year. This is a excellent indication, and as farmers are finding a market for their produce, we hope they will be encouraged to devote their time and means to agricultural pursuits rather than to go off in search of the pot of gold under the rainbow.

RUNAWAY EXCITEMENT.—Yesterday afternoon, as the steamer Senator blew her whistle as the drays took up the accustomed line of march for Couch's wharf, one horse, attached to a dray receiving some goods from Weil & Co.'s, on Front street, after fairly awaiting the word of his driver, started off without him, in endeavoring to avoid another dray or independent animal, grazed a lamp-post, drove enough to jar out a little glass, and made for the wharf. Some of the draymen took to get ahead, and the result was a very pretty race. If he had been left to himself the horse would doubtless have backed his dray into the proper place for receiving freight. As it was, he was so pressed that he fell, in going down the wharf, and was caught before he could complete his maneuver.

WHAT IT WAS FOR.—The lookers-out for Oregon City boat yesterday were very much exercised by an irrepressible wonder-at her stopping, and turning head up-stream, at the foot of the Island. The fact is she had a threshing machine on board destined for that particular locality, and being unable to get it ashore any other way, she landed it.

MISSING VOLUME.—The first volume of the DAILY OREGONIAN was taken from this office during last summer, and has never been returned. It is of more value to the office than it can ever become to any private individual, and we therefore hope the party having it in possession will oblige us by returning it at as early a period as convenient.

GOVERNMENT FLOUR.—Messrs. Allen & Lewis, contractors with the Government for two hundred tons flour, are daily sending forward on the steamer Vancouver about ten tons, delivering at the Commissary Department at Fort Vancouver. The flour is from Eddy & Co.'s Hunkie Mills. Some 120 tons of the 200 contracted, have already been delivered.

MEMORANDUM BOOK FOUND.—A small book memoranda, apparently belonging to R. McConnell, of Danby, Ionia Co., Mich., was picked up on the Canyon road yesterday, and left at this office by the finder. The owner can have it by calling.

AUGUST 11TH, 1862.—Any person in possession of a copy of the DAILY OREGONIAN of August 11th, 1862, who can and will spare it to the benefit of this office, shall be satisfied for its presentation. We hope some one of our patrons, who do not file the paper, will oblige us by hunting it up.

THE John H. Couch, Capt. Holman, arrived from Astoria with the United States Mail, and a few passengers destined for the gold regions, at an early hour last evening. From Capt. H. we learn the Pacific, unfortunately, was not able to cross the Bar until Tuesday, at 10 o'clock, in consequence of rough sea. No vessels are reported.

THE steamer Hunt arrived at her wharf at the Cascades yesterday afternoon at three o'clock. With the light freights of this early season she gets her daily round accomplished in short meter.

RISE IN THE COLUMBIA.—We are informed that the Columbia river has risen about four feet at the Cascades. The Willamette here still continues to recede, having fallen about one foot yesterday.

FROM WALLULA.—We are informed by Perry Day, of the Hunt, that the steamer left Wallula on Monday, and that insecurity by her return trip will arrive here to-morrow night.

THE TREASURE came down from the mining districts yesterday, and the steamer only brought passengers. We need not look for many passengers downward before next fall.

DROWNED.—A young man was drowned in the Santiam river about ten days ago, while attempting to cross, with another, in a canoe. His name was Connoyer; he was with a party descending Snake river some two weeks since, all of whom but Connoyer were saved. The body was found about ten miles below where the casualty occurred.

FALL TIMES OR HARD TIMES don't appear to make much difference with Houston, Hastings & Co., the San Francisco Tailors and Outfitters. They seem to be always busy. This phenomenon can only be accounted for by the fact that they give satisfaction to everybody and their customers come again.

HINTS TO HOUSE KEEPERS.—A good washing fluid may be made of hot water and plenty of soap.

Sweetmeats may be kept a long time by putting them in a safe place, and never setting them upon the table.

Plenty of fresh, sweet butter, and a good appetite will keep bread from moulding.

Children's dresses wear longer by letting them reach their ankles.

Woolen rags should always be washed in sweet oil before they are made into flannel cakes.

Pork should always be salted down—never up.

A regard for decency requires that salad should be dressed before appearance at the table.

Milk that has stood for some time should be permitted to sit down.

Carpets will prove more durable if you take care not to tread upon them.

The celebrated Dean Swift, in preaching an assize sermon, was severe upon lawyers for pleading against their conscience. After dinner, a young counsellor said some severe things against the clergy, and added that he did not doubt, were the devil to die, a parson might be found to preach a funeral sermon. "Yes," said Swift, "I would, and give the devil his due, as I did his children this morning."

"My dear hearers," said a preacher, discoursing on the awful subject of death, "there's nothing destroys so many lives as death. Some people are killed by accident, and some in battle; some are lost at sea, and some are devoured by wild beasts; but, my hearers, it is a solemn truth that nothing kills so many as death. Ay, death has been at work ever since sin entered the world, and destroyed millions on millions of the human family."

MISS FANNY FERN, in the Olive Branch, says the only way for the female community to obtain their rights is to pursue the "Uriah Heep" policy—look humble, and be almighty cunning. Bait 'em with submission and then throw the noose over the will. Appear not to have any choice, and as true as gospel you'll get it. Ask their advice, and they'll be sure to follow yours. Look one way, and pull another. Make your reins of silk, keep them out of sight, and drive where you like.

INDUSTRIOUS JOHN CHINAMAN.—What a truly industrious people the Chinese are! At work, cheerfully and brisk, till 10 o'clock at night. Huge piles of linen and under-clothing are disposed in baskets around the room, near the different fronters. Those of work dumping and ironing—peculiar practises, both. A bowl of water is standing at the ironer's side, as in ordinary laundries, but used very differently. Instead of dipping the fingers in the water and then snapping them over the clothes, the operator puts his head into the bowl, fills his mouth with water, and then blows so that the water comes out of his mouth in a mist resembling the emission of steam from an escape pipe, at the same time so directing his head that the mist is scattered all over the piece he is about to iron. The invention for ironing beats the Yankees all to bits. It is a vessel resembling a small deep, metallic basin, having a highly polished flat bottom, and a fire of charcoal continually burning in it. Thus they keep the iron hot without running to the fire every five minutes, and quitting on it to ascertain by the "sizzle" if it is ready for use. This ironing-machine has a long handle, and is propelled without danger of burning the fingers by the slipping of the "ironing rag." Ladies who use the ordinary flat-iron will appreciate the improvement.

Be Wise by Times!—Do not trifle with your Health, Constitution and Character. If you are suffering with any diseases for which HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is recommended,

TRY IT! TRY IT! TRY IT!

It will Cure you, save long suffering, allaying pain and inflammation, and will restore you to HEALTH AND PURITY at little expense and no exposure. Cut out the advertisement in another column, and call or send for it.

Beware of Counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's, take no other. Cures guaranteed. no11dawly2m

Fever and Ague is speedily cured by Dr. OSGOOD'S INDIA CHOLAGOGUE. The sallow complexion and jaundiced eye which often precede its attacks, are in a few days entirely removed. The health of thousands has been perfectly restored by this medicine when other remedies have failed. Its operation is not simply to suspend the disease for a time, but to purify the system and restore it to sound and perfect health. A small treatise on the "Causes, Treatment and Cure of Fever and Ague, and other Diseases of Bilious Climates," may be had gratis of the Agent. Beware of other Cholagogues. Dr Osgoode is the original and only genuine preparation.

Resolutions

On the Concord, N. H., "Dimmocratic," so-called not in honor of General Jackson, dedicated to Hon. Franklin Pierce, the Hero of Mexico and the Chairman of the Convention.

BY CHARLEY GRIMES.

Resolved, That nation's going to ruin—
Old Abram Lincoln's certain planned it;
There's some awful fire-"muschief brewin'"—
We damned Seize can't no ways stand it;
We make a vow, from this time forth,
To stop all warfare in the North.

Resolved, That Lincoln's a usurper—
An orful guy wun, at that
He shall no[illegible] me wun step further!
Than we're a mind to go—that's flat!
We luv the Guvernment of the nation,
But go agin its Administration.

Resolved, That war should be conducted
Most viggorous, by laws or peace;
That nigger folks may be abducted
Wherese our Southern brothren please;
And wheresoe'er a trimbin slave is,
He should be given to Jeff. Davis.

Resolved, That stones we're throwin' in Dixie
How brought us to an orful [illegible]:
We let our daddies rise too quickly:
We should hot gone a throwin' grass,
We'll owe Vallandigham a saint
Woe to the man who e'er he airs it!

Resolved, We will record the history,
That in this war we've acted wust
It's true, the South hoed on "Old Glory;"
But ullup we go and hit at it fust!
We must hev missed the war's mischances
If we had hoisted olive branches.

Therefore, we forsy ases[illegible]
To make Lincoln's orders void—
To push his elements to dofuslun,
So flint our fourfathers don't be annoyed;
And fortify four strong posishun
By doing guns on abolishun!

We'll grasp the fi'ry Southern Cross,
But show the Union's starry banner;
We'll kiver treason, shame and loss
With patriotic lowed Rosanna;
We scorn deceit, detest hypocrisy—
Make way clear for the Peace Dimmocracy.

A Texan Obituary Notice.

Texas was formerly the "Botany Bay" of the United States, and consequently her early settlers were of the dare-devil, coarse, and illiterate class. The following obituary speech is said to have been delivered in the Texas Legislature a few years since:

"It seems there was a member belonging to it by the name of Dill, who seceded from that body while in session, the inducing cause of his secession being typhoid fever and a lack of wind. On the day which followed his decease, Mr. Gherken, a member, arose to announce the melancholy fact to the House. Another member of that body, named Slacker, was the chronic opponent of Gherken in all matters of legislation, from a cambric needle to a sheet-anchor, and never neglected a chance to give him a shot. Mr. Gherken, after a solemn pause, said:

"'Mr. Speaker! I have riz in my seat for the purpose of informing this yer House that Solomon Dill, a member of this yer body, whose seat is now unfortunately vacant, has fell a victim to the grim and destroying tyrant who yesterday put an end to his career, and that he is now dead at the house of the widow Jones, on the hill, where he and many members of this yer House boards, who gave him attention throughout a lengthy and consequently protracted typhus fever, and who furnished board and lodging to the members of this yer Legislature to the uniform price of four dollars an a 'af a week, washing not included. It ain't with feelings of no ordinary regret that I make this yer communication, to this yer orgust body, Mr. Speaker, for I knowed the decease, and knowed him from A to izzard! He, like all other men, had his faults, and who ain't got 'em? If he was not strictly virtuous among females, who is? I put it to you and this yer orgust body to answer! He may have been slightly addicted to whiskey; but who in Texas ain't? And so let that yer mantle fall on the first rock.

"'He may have been quick to use his tools; but who in Texas ain't? But he never draw'd a weapon if he wasn't mad! People say he didn't pay his debts! Who does, in Texas, Mr. Speaker? Among his virtues he was fond of encouraging the breed of that noble animal, the hoss, in the most extensive manner, and Mr. Speaker, conscientiously attended every race within twenty miles to this yer place, and, in a gentlemanly manner, backed his opinion onto certain events in the future to the extent of his ability. He was a good, and honest man, and a perfect gentleman, and by his melancholy decease society has lost a bright ornament, and this yer House, but more especially over the domestic circle of Mrs. Jones, where, as I said before, board and lodgment is furnished to the members of this yer House at a uniform price of four an a 'af a week, washing not included, Mr. Speaker.'"

Mr. Slaker here started up, saying that he arose to a point of order."

The Speaker requested the honorable member to state his point."

Mr. Slaker said:

"Is it in order for a member of this House in his speech onto a dead man, to ring in a boardin' house kop by his aunt and furnished by himself?"

The Speaker decided the "pint" not well taken, and after a withering glance at Slaker, Mr. Gherken proceeded:

"This is too solemn a time, Mr. Speaker, to notice personalities and side mark. I'll see that his mutton is cooked hereafter, and not on a melancholy subject. To resume the deceased: Whatever can be said of him, no man can declare that he was not a patriot! Look back on his record, and see what's thar! for Dr. Wade eloquently remarks, 'By their record shall ye know them.' Mr. Speaker, what is that record?

"Virtue is its own reward, Mr. Speaker, and no great action was ever done but what the man who does it was barked after by somebody. But the deceased, intrenched in the glorious armor of patriotism, with hand upon this yer record, could defy chair lightning in any shape, and when prostrated and maculated he died on his prostrate bed at the house of Mrs. Jones, where, as I had occasion before to remark, no matter whose corns is trod on, the members of this yer House is furnished with board and lodging at the uniform price of four dollars an a 'af a week, washing not included—the thought of that bill, and that record, and that patriotism, came to his wounded sensibilities and his sinking form like a heavenly angel, and death could not set him even a half turn back.

"I close, Mr. Speaker, this melancholy and afflicting duty, that a committee be appointed to draw resolutions on the deceased, and report, at the same time remarking that the gorgeous and smiling Heavens have opened to receive his mortal spirit, and that his earthly remains will be buried to-morrow, at 3 o'clock from the house of Mrs. Jones, where it is eminently proper to remark, and I do it emphatic, that board and lodging can be obtained at the moderate price of four dollars an a 'af a week, washing not included, where the deceased boarded and occupied an elegant room, now unfortunately vacant. Peace to his ashes."

Two clergymen—one a Presbyterian, and the other of the Dutch Reformed Church—were seated in a jovial mood before the fireplace enjoying themselves in a friendly chat. The Dutchman, like most of his brethren, an inveterate smoker, in rising from the fire, at which he had re-lighted his pipe, struck the back of his head against the wall of the chimney. "Ouch," he cried, "that makes my head ring." "Then it must be hollow," said his friend. Don't your head ring when you strike it?" inquired the other. "No." "Then it must be cracked!" was the rejoinder.

DON'T SPILL THE GRAVY.—Catlin, the famous American traveler and collector of Indian curiosities has seen some stirring incidents in the course of his adventures. The following is related by a fellow traveler, who gave Catlin the sobriquet of "Governor:"

One day, when he had landed, and most of our party were lying asleep on the boat, which was drawn under the shade of some large trees, the Governor and I had collected some wood and made a large fire on the bank, two or three rods from the boat, over which we were roasting a fat pig, which I had shot during the morning. I was squatted down on one side of the fire, holding a short-handled frying pan, in which we had made some very rich gravy, which the Governor, who was squatted opposite me, was ladeling over the pig with a wooden spoon. All of a sudden I observed his eye fixed upon something over my shoulder, when he said to me in a very low tone: "Now I want you to keep perfectly cool, and don't spill the gravy, there is a splendid tiger right behind you!" I held fast to the frying pan, and, turning my head gradually around, had a full view of the fellow, within eight paces, lying flat on his side, and with his paws lifting up and playing with the legs of one of our Spaniards, who had laid himself down upon his belly and was fast asleep. Our rifles were left in the boat! The Governor drew himself gradually down the bank, on his hands and feet, ordering me not to move. I was in hopes he would have taken the old Minie, but he preferred his own weapon, and getting it to bear upon the beast, he was obliged to wait some minutes for it to raise its head so as not to endanger the poor Spaniard; at the crack of the rifle, the animal gave a piercing screech and leaped about fifteen feet straight into the air and fell quite dead. The Spaniard leaped nearly as far in a different direction; and at the same instant, behind a little bunch of bushes on the opposite side, and not half the distance from the fire, and right behind the Governor's back, where he had been sitting, sprang the mate, which darted into the thicket and disappeared. We skinned this beautiful animal which was shot exactly between the eyes, and after all had withdrawn to the boat, waited several hours in hopes that the other one would show itself again; but waited in vain, and lost our game."

About women some queer things are said which only the professed egotists have the hardihood to publish. Everybody remembers Punch's aphorism, that "men want all they can get, and women all they can't get." Sturr King said, in a lecture, that "whenever three women are walking together, two of them are laughing." We have ourselves remarked that of the men and women whom we meet, in a fashionable promenade, the latter as a general thing, have the more cheerful look. An ill-natured bachelor, to whom we mentioned the fact, said it was owing to the greater pride of apparel. "A well dressed woman is always happy," said the impudent churl. It has been noticed invariably, that fat women envy the lean ones, and the lean ones the fat.

A recent writer contributes the following: "The smaller a lady is, so much the more does she affect sunflower rosettes, ominous flounces, and extra sized ornaments. Diminutive ladies invariably admire giant-like gentlemen, and vice versa. Ladies who are greatly admired by their own sex are very seldom viewed in the same light by gentlemen—if you walk up the street with a bouquet in your hand, nine women out of ten will look attentively at it, while not one man of ten will notice its existence. It is a curious fact, that those women who have made the most acquaintances during a long course of years have by far the best memory for persons and faces. Although women are supposed to be the talkative sex, it is not less true that in learning a foreign tongue men acquire more readily the facility in speaking it, while ladies understand it better and sooner when spoken to."—N. Y. Argus.

"My son haven't I told you three times to go and shut that gate?" said a father to a three-year old.

"Yes," said Young America, "and haven't I told you three times that I wouldn't do it? You must be stupid!"

A married lady found her two sons engaged in quarrelling, and in hopes of stopping their dispute, she unthinkingly said to them:—"You young rascals, if you don't behave yourselves, I'll tell both of your fathers!"

A newly elected deacon, not far from Boston, at the evening meeting over which he presided said he was always pleased with St. Paul's Epistles, and would read for their instruction, from "Paul's Epistle to the Acts."

The Chicago ladies now go to balls in furniture wagons, as no ordinary carriages can contain the immense dresses they wear.

To The Public.

I WOULD HEREBY CALL THE ATTENTION of the public to the fact, that on the first of May, 1864, they will be called upon by the United States Assessors, to make statement of income for the year 1863, and as the year 1863 is just ended, it would be well for every one to make up their accounts for said year, while every thing is fresh in their memory, and be ready to make statement when called upon by the Assessor.

Under the ruling of the Commissioner of Internal revenue, persons can only deduct expenses for repairs, etc., from the amount received from the same property on which such expenditure have been made. For instance—A person receives $500 for rents; he can use of that amount all that is necessary to repair such property, from which rents were derived; like same rule applies to steam-boats, sawmills, and other like property; but all moneys received from interest on notes, Bonds, Mortgages, and from dividends, must be returned as income, although a portion or the whole has been expended in repairing buildings, steamboats, &c.

If persons will prepare their accounts and statements showing amounts received and the source from whence derived, amount expended, and for what purpose, then with the forms and blanks which will be furnished them by the Assessor, a correct return can be made.

The Daily Mail

The Statesman says it is "informed that the Postoffice Department has been induced to make the proposed arrangement by representations that the contracts could thus be let advantageously, and that the people of California considered the California Stage Company's contract an unfair monopoly." We are very glad to know who has imposed on the Department so abominably, for certainly no one who has any sense or regard for the rights of the people of this State, could have manufactured such a pair of wholesale goods perhaps we ought to qualify this last thing that it is possible to make contracts to transport the mail in fifteen days on as advantageous terms than in seven days

The economy, however, is unworthy of a just Government, and if any body has told the Department any such thing, he deserves to be kicked into the Ocean If cheap terms are the only thing that the Department cares for, it might get the mail at still lower rates, on a thirty day route perhaps it will do this, if it depends on recommendations, and the State has no one in Washington who can use any influence with the Postmaster General to induce him to make such facilities, or at least to give such as have been allowed to us

The story about the Stage Company's contract being regarded as an unfair monopoly is regarded as anything which can be invented We do not believe that any such statement ever went from Oregon, and if it did our Senators and Representatives ought to be sufficiently well informed and active enough to have blown such nonsense out of the water in five minutes Both these excuses are too paltry to deserve any consideration . It is impossible to believe that the Department, for any such reasons, has so greatly reduced the mail conveniences, unless there has been a consent to this reduction on the part of some one, who was supposed to know what the people wanted, or an indifference quite as blameable which has allowed the Department to take away every advantage from the existing system We hope, however, that the threatened evil will be speedily remedied, and that if any one is in fault, the blunder will be repaired before it is too late.

REFUSED TO INVESTIGATE —The reports in regard to the treatment of Union soldiers have assumed such consequence that Ex Governor Foote, in the rebel Congress, offered a resolution to make inquiries upon the subject. The remarks made by him prove that a system of unparalleled outrages has been tolerated, and that brave defenders of their country have been starved for mercenary purposes In explaining his object, Foote said that—

His design was to investigate facts, and he had a few to offer not to give information to the enemy, but to give information to this House, and to the country, that the honor of the country may be protected A certain Commissary General, who was a curse to our country had been invested with authority to control the matter of subsistence This man, this monster this Northrop, has stealthily placed our Government in the attitude charged by the enemy, and has attempted to starve the prisoners in our hands

Here Foote read a letter from the Quartermaster for the prisons, Captain J. Warner, addressed to General Winder, and placed on the record of Col. Ould's office, which stated that he (Capt. Warner) had from the 1st to the 20th of last month, been able to obtain meat for the prisoners in a very irregular and meager manner from the Department and that for six days only of the period was he able to obtain a regular supply, for twelve days the supply was irregular and inadequate, and for eight days they got none at all.

This Commissary General who he was told (continued Foote,) was a sort of hopper doctor down in Charleston, and, he must say looked as like a vegetarian as his practice would indicate had actually made an elaborate report to the Secretary of War shooting that for the sustenance of a Yankee carcass a vegetable diet was the most proper that could be adopted He had other facts which he would bring forward in addition to this to show that this Northrop should be turned out For the honor of the country he should be ejected at once

The vote was taken on the resolution and it was lost

Easily Satisfied.

The Review this week is delighted with the action of the Northern traitors or Peace Democrats, who recently held a caucus at Washington, and thinks they have done a great and good work, in suggesting a basis of opposition to the Government We are not surprised at these expressions of satisfaction, they are perfectly consistent with the opinions of that paper, and show that it is ready to hail with gladness any scheme that looks towards giving aid and comfort to the rebellion Certainly the Democratic caucus never suggested a single thought tending to preserve the liberties of the nation, or to increase and strengthen the army so that it might more successfully vanquish the fratricidal foe Its purpose had no such complexion Patriotism was never mentioned in its proceedings It was convened with no such object in view The only question before it was, "How shall we resuscitate the Democratic party?" That is the only thing which concerns the Review The Union may go to the devil, if only Democrats can manage and control the wreck That is as good a thing as they want, and that being secured, nothing else is worth considering or fighting for The course laid out by the "caucus, as the programme of its party, is just ruinous and wicked enough, to satisfy the treasonable wishes of all that class who love Democracy and hate patriotism—who make slavery the god of their idolatry, and worship its fruits, as the blessings upon which their souls and bodies thrive and grow fat

FIRST W T VOLUNTEERS —We understand that only one company of this regiment has been entirely recruited within the confines of Washington Territory, viz Company K, at Fort Steilacoom. First Lieut Jester is quite successful in his efforts at recruiting at Port Townsend, and the probabilities are that under the liberal offers of Government, the Company will possess its full complement by spring. It would seem, but fair that under such circumstances, Company K, should preserve its "identity" in the event of a more anticipated consolidation The Herald, in an editorial on this subject justly remarks

But the regiment has not entirely lost its vitality and may again be restored to the required standard The company stationed at Fort Steilacoom now numbers forty-eight men, and will soon We have no doubt be raised to the full complement; for we know that the gradually coming in, and we hear of a number of men on their way up from below to enlist The officers, Capt Tucker and Lieut Jester and Tuthill have shown themselves well qualified for their positions, and every why wish to the confidence of their superiors. In the matter of discipline their company is not excelled by veteran regulars anywhere; of this we have ample evidence in the harmony maintained at the garrison; and in the conduct of the men when in town A better ordered company never existed Post Justice to the officers demands at least this statement With the addition of the necessary number of recruits to fill it up, which we believe will soon be made, it may safely challenge comparison with any volunteer company in the service. We therefore trust that whatever changes may take place in the regiment, this company and the officers will be retained in their present position Their fidelity merits favorable consideration and should receive it

THE NEVADA CONSTITUTION —A dispatch in the Yreka Union of the 20th inst, dated at Virginia City on the evening of election day states "that the vote there is two to one against the Constitution" We are not surprised at this result, and, though we should be glad to have as many States on this coast as possible, we are not very sorry that the political schemers who have engineered the machine have failed in their purpose The people saw through the device, and repudiated it rather in self defense than because they did not approve the Constitution. So they gave up the State for the present, to avoid the incumbrance of such men

INDIAN DEPREDATIONS —News had been received at Yreka, on the 18th, that the Indians in Klamath county, California, had commenced to be troublesome, and had killed several men near Sawyer's Bar Efforts were made immediately to start a military force across the mountain for the protection of the inhabitants The Hoopa Valley Indians are also reported as having planned a guerilla campaign which is extensive, and promises great destruction of life and property unless they are defeated

THE IRISH EMIGRATION —The large and continuous emigration from Ireland to the United States of America is naturally attracting a considerable share of attention Week by week and month by month the people leave for New York, some in returning grain ships, some in steamers, some in slow aways, as fast as opportunity serves. Nothing will stop them. Emigration has long been the Irishman's favorite resource, but it is a national passion. Of course, this is not a very pleasant spectacle to Englishmen. We, who have relinquished home politics in order to be freer to advise the governments of the world in the management of their affairs, have the mortification of seeing the very shores of the United Kingdom abandoned, sometimes with a malediction, by our own people Explanations, however plausible, can do little to reconcile us to the fact. We have been accustomed to repeat that a country from which people are anxious to escape must be badly governed. Now the test is brought to us, and foreigners are saying, "Physician, heal thyself." It is the best portion of the Irish population which is leaving us—the young, the male, the hopeful, the energetic The strongest inducements are weak and ineffectual before the all-engrossing thought of America —London Times, Nov 4th

THE LAWS OF FASHION are as imperious as the Laws of Health—they must be observed Who of our lady readers, when tall bonnets are the style, would be seen with one of season before last compressed ones?—and when the Fashion Books show us skirts and cloaks embroidered all over, who will be without them? But it would be a cruel waste of time to do all this intricate and delicate work by hand when Grover & Baker's Machine, having for the moment performed all the sewing to be done, stands, with uplifted needle, ready to commence its pleasant task of throwing off the most beautiful embroidery with ar ease and nonchalence truly wonderful; and either sewing or embroidery comes just as easy and is performed just as quickly, one as the other, on this celebrated Machine

HOW THE THREE HUNDRED POUNDER PARROTTS ARE WORKED.—A correspondent on Morris Island writes

As there is no manual in use down for the three hundred pounder Parrott, I subjoin that in use "The piece is on its carriage and from battery." Implements, two to be found in the same place, and no one else to be proper place The instructor gives the command load her up" At this command the gunner says "Stand from under fellers I ring a shell," and John bring a cartridge" Some of the fellers take a small hand barrow and bring a shell Gunner says—"Stick in that powder Now boys hold on till I get out a fuse." All obey Stick in it hard heaving get the shell to the submarine gunner says "swab her out" She is swabbed out Now heave and haul" In it goes Now it is rammed down She is run to The recoil handspike are screwed down Gunner aims —'slew her round a little' 'All right' 'Now git out of the way, everybody' Shot is rammed 'ward and he S steps round the corner, All get behind so as not to be hit if the gun bursts Gunner says— Blow away!' She blazes away 'The gunner remarks on returning to the gun —'How are you Sumter?' Repent

SHIRTED DEBATE —The following is an account of a spirited debate in the United States Senate, December 15th

DAVIS of Kentucky called up the resolution in relation to the exchange of prisoners, offering a joint rule against the policy of refusing to exchange, and offering a resolution declaring the imprisonment, starving, and barbarous treatment of the rebels of Fort Pillow, and the massacre of negro soldiers there, to be unworthy of the character of the American people He dwelt at length upon the several points on which he supposed the testimony before the committee would sustain the charges, referring to the resolutions of the Legislature of Kentucky, which declared that the blood of the murdered victims of Fort Pillow cried aloud for vengeance, and to the letter of Governor Bramlette, with its tales of anguish—one sons given to starve for our widows in mourning and with kindred in distress and in the insurrection we have not the wonder is how it is and its way up into the high offices of the Senator from Kentucky applause from the Democratic benches

LANE of Indiana remarked that he understood the Senator from Kentucky to say that Joe Gentry had declared it was proposed by the President to return his power into the hands of the rebels He (Lane) did not believe that the Administration dared to do it, for the mutterings of the country if such a thing should be attempted, were ominous of the most terrible consequences. He (Lane) would not believe that the Administration would be guilty of the crime of betraying the loyal men of the South into the hands of their enemies, and he would tell the Senator from Kentucky that these men should not be protected, if he could help it, by the Constitution relative to those who had engaged in treason

DAVIS replied that the Senator from Indiana (Lane) misunderstood him. He (Davis) did not say that the Administration contemplated any such thing as the Senator from Indiana (Lane) seemed to suppose. He (Davis) did say that it was the duty of the Administration to protect the citizens of the country in the exercise of their rights, and that the Administration was sustained in this position by the Constitution

DAVIS (resuming) said that the whole subject matter of the resolutions had been referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and that the Committee had not been discharged from the consideration of the subject. He (Davis) would not now enter into a discussion of the matter, but would say that the Administration had not the power to declare that the rebels should be treated as prisoners of war. The Constitution confers no power on the Government or the Supreme Court to adjudge what shall be the rights of belligerents. The Supreme Court has only the right to adjudge what rights may be brought to such adjudication by the Administration. The Administration had not been so reluctant to exercise any of their powers to protect rebels and enemies of the country as they should to protect citizens and friends of the country

HALE of New Hampshire arose to quietly move, when what was the surprise of the gentleman on the floor to find that the war had given rise to a new element in the next Presidential election? A more atrocious allegation against the honorable Senators and citizens has not been made during the present malignant rebellion than that charging to the Democratic party the intention of the Administration to withdraw our armies from the field, and to let both the Union and the Constitution perish at the hands of the rebels. You will remember that Hooker moved on Lookout Mountain very cautiously, from the west side While engaged in the movement up the valley owing to some cause unknown to me, a stampede among the mules took place It was in the dead of night, when both armies were resting from the fatigues of the previous day, and the sentinel's tread was the only sound that disturbed the universal quiet Rushing from the wagons, to the number of about thirty the mules made for the enemy's lines like frightened sheep The drivers were awakened by the noise just in time to witness the disappearance of the animals through our advanced pickets The enemy's picket was not caught napping. Hearing the mule brigade tearing across the valley, they mistook them for Yankee cavalry, discharged their muskets at the supposed "Yanks" and fell back upon a battalion stationed a little in the rear of them, with the cry that "they are upon us" The battalion, partaking of the alarm, sprang to arms only in time to hear the sound of the frightened mules, whose race was checked by the volley from the pickets They retreated also a short distance to a point where the whole rebel brigade had stacked their arms, and were calmly dreaming of home and battle scenes. In rushed the battalion, more dead than alive from fright, with the exclamation Hooker has surprised us, his cavalry is upon us" The valiant sons of Mars did not wait to gather up their blankets or guns, but made the fastest pedestrian time on record back to the main force, leaving upon the field for the mule brigade, over one thousand stand of arms among which were three hundred new Enfield rifles, blankets, small arms, knapsacks, &c Meantime our teamsters had given the alarm, and a force was sent out for the mules, and in a few hours the expedition inaugurated by the mules returned to our lines with the valuable spoil.

"This is no fancy sketch, its correctness is vouched for by a member of Gen Thomas's staff, who was present when the expedition returned It will be recollected that in his report of Hooker's victory, Gen Thomas stated that 1 500 stand of arms were captured. You, in common with many of your readers, were no doubt at a loss to discover by what prestidigitateral process mule arms were taken than prisoners In the midnight charge of the mule brigade you have a solution of the problem Through its aid a large amount of valuable stores and arms was secured, and Hooker was enabled to push his advance much nearer the point of ground contended for All will agree that the charge of the mule brigade is worthy of a place in history

HEALTH OF THE COUNTRY —There is an extra amount of sickness throughout the country at the present time At the Dalles, at Jacksonville, and other points we hear of a great many deaths At McMinnville eight deaths have suddenly and singularly occurred recently, four children in one family, and four other adults The symptoms in these cases were violent headache, followed by griping in the bowels Death ensued in three or four hours

LIGHT IN A DARK SPOT —Alexander county, the extreme corner of "Egypt," in which the city of Cairo is located, gave only seven majority for the Democratic ticket at the recent county election Two or three years ago that county was unanimously "Democratic" "So we go" It is believed that the aggregate vote in "Egypt" will show a Union majority this year

Mr Cobden on the American War

M. Cobden delivered his annual address to his constituents on the 24th of November last at Rochdale, England. He reviewed, of course, the principal public events and questions that have interested the British public during the year He noticed the fact that the attention of the public was very much absorbed with other folks' affairs, that constant interference with foreign matters had become its habit, while the present Parliament was 'destitute of principle and purpose,' and affairs at home were clamoring for reform He believed that a Divine Providence ruled the world, he did not think the Divine power had deputized to England the responsibility of regulating the affairs or remedying the evils of other countries. "When," said he, "I see that Russia is burning Polish villages I am restrained from even reproaching them for it, because I am afraid they will point Japanwards and scream in my ear "Kagosima!"

We all have our little projects of intervention Some will manage the affairs of the Americans others will take in charge the regulation of the affairs of Poland others are interested in Italy, and so it is that we are interfering more than ever in foreign affairs" He then takes up the case of those who in England are urging the recognition, or something that means that, of the Confederacy The "Upper Ten Thousand," or, as they delight to call themselves, 'Society,' and more than twentieths of the "ruling classes" in the cities Mr Cobden thinks have been firmly convinced that the American civil war can only end in separation He says

I believe the conviction has been sincere; I believe it has been founded on the belief that, looking at the vast extent of territory occupied by the insurgents in this war it was impossible that they could be subjugated by any forces that could be brought against them by the North. But there has been a most lamentable ignorance amongst those classes to which I refer of what may be, in the conduct of the organs of the press which is by considered the exponents Their views have been errors in geography mighty rivers, to which as in England four inches no serious obstacle, and miles of steam navigation, have been described to those leading organs as running into one river and another in utter disregard of the rules of geography. In the same manner a number of great cities in America—cities of 100000 and 150 000 inhabitants—which are among the largest shipping ports for raw produce in the world, in the interior of that country In one of them I have seen a mile of steamboats moored side by side and a set of men that great commerce standing in the midst of the strength and resources of North America, the ruling classes in this country know nothing You don't find them in books of Oxford and Cambridge, where your best gentlemen are obliged to study before they get the other finishing But in order to form a just opinion of the resources that the opinion of the ruling classes in England has been come to But I, whom accident, perhaps more, I am anything else, has made as well acquainted with the politics and geography of this country as with my own I have never believed—as I believe you restin in ever—that I shall ever live, or that any one here could live to see the separate nations now in the councils of the present United States of America [Cheers] I will tell you candidly it is as far as I was not for the cotton, I should consider as hopeless, and as useless the effort to subjugate the Southern States of America to the Union does upon whose views I have been commenting. It is the fact which the separation has been made that in my opinion, renders the success of the Secessionists absolutely impossible And if the moral and political population of this country had not been systematically misled upon that question, they would have been unanimously of that conviction.

I do demand from personal observation the truth of the ridiculous statement made in the House of Commons that the war originated in the wish of the South to establish free trade principles, which the North would not allow and mentioned as conclusive on that point the following fact,

In December 1860 when Congress was sitting and when the country was in the agony of the suspense, fearing this in pending inquiries Congress appointed a committee, consisting of 33 members, being a representation from every State then in the Union, and that Committee met from December 11, 1860 to January 14, 1861 It was called the Committee of Thirty three, and was instructed to inquire into the perilous state of dissolution and to devise some means by which the cause of secession could be averted I have a report of the proceedings of that Committee I believe there is not another report in this country I have reason to know so There are 40 pages I have read every page The representatives of the slave States were invited by the representatives of the free States to state candidly and frankly what were the terms which they required in order that they might continue peaceably in the Union and in every page you see these propositions brought forward From beginning to end of these 40 pages there is not a syllable said about tariff or taxation. (Cheers) From beginning to end there is not a grievance alleged but that which is connected with the institution of slavery There are propositions calling upon the North to give increased security to the maintenance of that institution They are invited to extend the area of slavery, to make laws by which fugitive slaves shall be given up They are pressed to make treaties with foreign powers by which those powers should be required to give up slaves But from beginning to end no grievance was alleged but what is connected with Slavery It is slavery slavery slavery, from beginning to end.

And now Mr Cobden expresses his opinion of the cause, of the nature, and the inevitable result of the war

This is a war to extend and perpetuate human slavery [Partial applause.] It is a war not to defend slavery as it was left by their successors—a thing to be restrained and limited and by-and-by to be got rid of—but it is a war to establish a slave empire, where slavery shall be made the corner stone of the social system where it shall be defended and instituted on scriptural and ethnological grounds [Cheers] I say God pardon the men who, in this year of grace, 1863, should think that such a project as that could be crowned with success [Cheers] Now you know why I have from the first never believed it possible that the South could succeed, and I have not sounded that faith merely on moral instincts which teach us to repudiate the very idea that anything so infernal should succeed No It is because in this world the supreme and the forces go together, and the exercise of weakness are unacceptable [Applause.] Therefore, I felt certain that this project never could succeed [Applause] For how is it if there is a community filled nearly half of the population slaves and they are attempting to fight another community where every workingman is a free man It is no though Yorkshire and Lancashire were to enter into a conflict, and it was understood that in the case of one all the laborers who did the muscular work of the country to the field in the factory on the roads, or in the domestic establishments—all the bone and muscle of the country should be eliminated from the fighting population, and leave to take advantage for themselves if an opportunity were offered them of running away—how could a contest of this circumstanced fight against the neighboring county where every workingman was fighting for his country? How could the one have a chance of succeeding even if left to physical force without the moral considerations to which I have referred? This is the condition in which the two sections of the United States are placed In the one case you have honor given to industry labor is held to be honorable What do we hear? Have we not heard by way of reproach by some people who fancied themselves in alliance with our aristocracy—some of our writers who wish to be supposed they are themselves of the aristocratic order—a thing to argue against the North, that their President was the son of a rail splitter [Cheers] But why is that rail-splitter elevated to the Presidency of the United States? Because labor is held to honorable in the United States (Cheers) With such a conflict going on and with such a result as I feel no doubt will follow—is it fair to speak of such a contest as that and say that it is a struggle for empire on the one side for independence on the other? I say it is the most extraordinary effort the world ever saw to establish a democratic government. (Applause) What is the title I would give to it In all history when you have had the aristocracy pitted against the people in a battle of forces and conflict, the aristocracy have always gone down under the heavy blows of the democracy [Hear, hear.]

After showing that Europe is likely to have business enough to attend to at home, and that the peace of Europe requires that America should be strong, Mr Cobden closed his noble utterances upon the American topic With a few of his sentences on that last point we conclude our extracts from his eloquent address

Who do see a people wish the United States should be cut in two? Do I think it desirable It should be taken out. Will that ever be the conclusion I am somewhat afraid to say Some of the opinion which our statesmen were visiting of Canning who thought it desirable for Europe that America should be strong because it would help to prevent European powers from interfering in America and it had not all come to interfere with European politics whilst it has kept American Governments from interfering in ours Some of the States which have been long in the Union less or forty than the United States What have followed of this disruption? You have France going into Mexico and Spain to St Domingo There are here an intolerable grievance to St Domingo because Spain has once had dominion there—likes, indeed—with a view to reconquest And the French have embarked in a career in Mexico, which I will only characterize as the greatest folly that we have ever noted [Loud applause] The people of those countries would never have been induced to do either of these things but for this difficulty and it is the last great calamity that civil contests with they have been accustomed to Such a thing has been so America was made

GLAD TO HEAR IT.—By letters received yesterday from Senator Nesmith, we learn that the petition asking that this city may be made a port of entry, has been presented to the Senate and referred to the Standing Committee thereon. Mr. Nesmith also states that he will give notice of his intention to introduce a bill providing for the location of a Branch Mint here, and promises that he will give his most attention to both these measures, which are so important to our local prosperity, and cannot fail to be of general benefit to the State and adjacent Territories. We trust his efforts will meet with prompt and full success.

CONVINCED AGAINST HIS WILL.—A soggy Democrat—one who thinks Joe Lane made a good will want his skin when he goes to heaven again—told us yesterday that he was a Union rating. "Why so?" we asked. "Oh, it's of no use," he said, "you fellows have got the country, and there are so many of you that of course you will have it all your own way, and force so much prosperity on the people that they will never look at a Democrat again. Besides, the Southerners will all be Union, and we shall have nobody to lean on, I aint going to vote any more—Democracy is played out, and I am done."

CITY COUNCIL.—The Council met last night with a full board. Mr. Sutton in the chair. The following business was transacted:

The petitions of Wm. Daly, the People's Transportation company, and Jacob Mayer, for a reduction of assessment on property, were adopted and reductions granted.

The reports of the city treasurer and collector were reported correct for the month of December last.

The committee on ways and means reported in favor of the payment of D. Wright, street sweeper, A motion to pay said bills—years 3, nays 6.

The committee on accounts and current expenses reported favorably on the bill of the Sheriff for $14; also on bill of Clerk of Circuit Court for witness fees, etc., against Multnomah, and recommended the sum of $89 be allowed to J. M. Breck. Report adopted and bill ordered paid.

The following claims against the city were ordered to be paid: Hodge & Calef, $5 two bills $1 25; Andrew Starkey, $25 50; Morse, $17 50; W. B. Clark, $35 Tucker, $150.

The committee on fire and water reported in favor of claim of Gill & Tucker for $75. On motion the bill was ordered to be paid.

On motion Council adjourned.

THE GRAY HORSE.—"A solitary horseman" as P. R. James would have it—was seen riding down Front street yesterday, from toward the penitentiary, at break-neck speed, and if it not been for an absence of the customary ripes on the clothing, and the rider's failure to stop the horse, the Marshal might have laid on him for a runaway convict. The horse was finally reined up, near the corner of Front street, when its owner commenced to explain it for the offence, an insult his master refused to take, and again put out at a rapid pace, up Alder street, much to the delight of the phellow's phellinks, and to the delight of the boys who followed in full cry.

THE PRESS.—The second annual edition of the Portland City Directory is now in press; and will soon be published. From Mr. Bushman, the canvasser, we learn his estimate of the present population of the city amounts to 14,000. His estimate for 1862 was 4,057—a gain for 1863, over that of 1862, is shown, of course. This is a healthy growth, but we think the estimate too small.

BROKE THE PEACE AND WAS SENT UP.—Fred. Reinhardt was brought before Recorder Moore yesterday, for behaving ungallantly—disturbing the peace and quiet of our usually orderly city, by violent and disorderly conduct—and stealing a pair of boots. Fred. was fined $25 for his acts, in default of which he was sent up for ten days.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Haynes, Superintendent of the Oregon Telegraph, was in Salem yesterday, and may be expected here to-night. Mr. Haynes is superintending the completion of this important work, and we suppose will be in charge an amount of material in this city, intended for the line.

THE Hunt brought nothing in the way of freight or passengers last night, worth relating. But we are informed hereafter the connection through will be complete. The Hunt was expected at Celilo, yesterday, and in the event of her arrival there, the Chief will leave to-day for Wallula.

GONE EAST.—Mr. Thomas Carter, one of our oldest citizens, has taken his departure on a business visit to the eastern States. The purposes entering upon an important enterprise in furnishing the mines with supplies from points on the Missouri.

THE FAIR PLAY left yesterday morning for Oak Point, intending to load with lumber, but where the lumber was intended for we did not learn. Of course it cannot come in competition with Portland lumber—would that be fair play?

RAIN AND SNOW.—For the past forty-eight hours the weather has had quite a fit of the blues, and yesterday about noon it looked very squally, snowing some. Present indications are promising for rain.

PEACE.—Jack was around taking quite a trip, where he could drop in through fog, the budding beauty of some of our orchards and door yards.

THE REBEL PICKETS.—A soldier writes:—"To drive dull care away, I went out to the front yesterday and made some very interesting acquaintances among the rebel pickets. I found them quite sociable and not at all disposed to be saucy. Nothing separating us but Lookout creek, which is only about twenty-five yards wide, there was of course, no difficulty in holding conversation. Those with whom I conversed were principally Alabamians and Mississippians. As usual they expressed themselves heartily tired of the war, and cherished the (vain) belief it would end this winter. When asked whether they would not rather be back in the old Union again, one of them—the principal spokesman—replied: "The old Government was good enough for me!" There was no dissenting voice to this candid confession, but they were careful to keep an eye out for the officer of the day all the while.

"Poor fellows! Could the hearts of these deluded men who make up the rank and file of Bragg's whole army be read, the sentence uttered by the Alabama picket would no doubt be found deeply impressed on every one.

"They did not complain of their fare; said it was good enough, though 'sometimes pretty hard.' Coffee they had not seen for ten months, except what our boys had traded them for tobacco, of which they always have an abundant supply. They threw a plug over while I was there and in turn received a Yankee jack-knife, worth in Confederate money, as they said, five dollars. An exchange of canteens was also made, 'yank' receiving one made of cedar wood for the tin edition of Uncle Sam. They get eleven dollars per month for their services which is just enough to pay for half-soling two pair of shoes."

A Down Easter speaks of a heavy fog in his locality. He says he hired a man to shingle a barn: At noon the man complained that it was a terrible long barn, for he had been at work all the morning and hadn't got one course laid. So after dinner he went to see what he'd been about, and found he had shingled more than a hundred feet right out on the fog!

To The Public.
I WOULD HEREBY CALL THE ATTENtion of the public to the fact, that on the first of May, 1864, they will be called upon by the United States Assessors, to make a statement of income for the year 1863, and as the year 1863 is just ended, it would be well for every one to make up their accounts for said year, while every thing is fresh in their memory, and be ready to make statement when called upon by the Assessor.
Under the ruling of the Commissioner of Internal revenue, persons can only deduct expenses for repairs, etc., from the amount received from the same proportion which such expenditure have been made. For instance—a person receives $500 for rents, he can use of that amount all that it necessary to repair such property, from which rents were derived; the same rule applies to steam-boats, saw-mills, and other like property; but all monies derived from intellectual culture, Bonds, Mortgages, and from dividends, must be returned as income, although a portion or the whole has been expended in repairing buildings, steamboats, etc.
If persons will prepare their accounts and statements showing amounts received and the source from whence derived, amount expended, and for what purpose, then with the forms and blanks which will be furnished them by the Assessor, a correct return can be made.

A Young Lady's Soliloquy.

Uselessly, aimlessly, drifting through life,
What was I born for? "For Somebody's wife,
Ham told by my mother. Well, that believe,
"Somebody" keeps himself strangely frozen,
And if naught but marriage will settle
I believe I shall die in an unsettled state—
For, though I'm not ugly—pray, who is?
You might easily find a more beautiful miss;
And then, as for temper and manners—in vain.
He who seeks for perfection will search in pain.
Nay, in spite of these drawbacks "better or worse,"
And I should not feel grateful, truly came
To take the first booby that proffers his name;
And offered those treasures, marriage are small—
I think, then, my chances a chances at all?
But why should I think a younger than I,
My brothers are, all of them why not let me try!
Was they thrive in the world not an adept!
I know that in business most strictly I'm kept.
Because from such as that puzzles my mind—
But—this is the rough work of some kind?
Why am I not thus drifting through life,
Uselessly, aimlessly be "Somebody's wife!"
Why should I?

No man could more thoroughly illustrate the vanity of all gifts where this is wanting than Theodore Hook.

Hook's turn for quizzing and practical jokes was very early displayed, and innumerable anecdotes are recorded of this propensity. They are connected chiefly with the theater, to which his occupations constantly led him, ...d where he was the soul and mirth-inspirer ...he motley community behind the scenes. ...ne occasion he nearly frightened Dowton, ...Swedian, out of his wits, by walking ...him instead of the proper personator of ...elivering a letter. There seems no rea... ...son for believing that Hook had been guilty ...of the least embezzlement or mal-appropria... ...tion of the Government funds; but there can ...be no doubt that his negligence in regard to ...his duty was most reprehensible, trusting en... ...tirely to a deputy who committed suicide ...about the time of the inquiry being instituted. ...A criminal charge was made out against the ...unfortunate accountant-general, and in 1818 ...he was sent home under arrest. His buoy... ...ancy of spirits, however, never failed him; ...and meeting at St. Helena one of his old asso... ...ciates, who asked if he was going home for ...his health, he replied: "Yes, I believe there ...is something wrong about the chest!"

On landing in England it was found there was no ground for criminal action against him, but that—as responsible for the acts of his deputy, his person and estate were amenable to civil proceedings. The whole of his property in the Mauritius and elsewhere was accordingly confiscated, and he underwent a long confinement, first in a sponging-house in Shire Lane, and afterward in the King's Bench Prison. Thrown again on his own resources, he produced several dramatic pieces, which achieved a respectable amount of success. The great event, however, at this period of his life, was his becoming editor of the John Bull newspaper, which, under his management, made itself conspicuous by its stinging and too often scurrilous attacks on the Whig party. An inexhaustible fund of material lampoon and satire was ever at the command of its conductor, and he certainly dealt out his sarcasm with no sparing hand. Some of the most famous of his effusions were directed against Queen Caroline and her party, at the time of the celebrated trial. "Whyttington and his Catte," the "Hunting of the Hare," and "Miss Muggin's visit to the Queen," were reckoned in their day by the Tories as uncommonly smart things.

Have you been to Brandenburgh house, ma'am?
Have you been to Brandenburgh house, ma'am?
Oh, yes! I have been, ma'am, to visit the queen, ma'am
With the rest of the gaieties show.
Whom did you see, ma'am? heigh, ma'am, hey, ma'am,
What did you see, ma'am? hey?
We saw a great dame, with a face as red as flame,
And a character spotless as snow.

"Mrs. Muggin's Visit" was a satire on Queen Caroline's drawing-room at Brandenburgh House, and is said to be a very good specimen of Hook's style in improvisation—an art which he possessed in a wonderful degree.

With a crushing debt constantly suspended in terrorem over him, and an enfeebled frame, the result of his confinement in prison, and partly also of the unwholesome style of living as regards food, in which he had indulged when abroad, his last ten years were sadly embittered by ill health, mental depression and pecuniary embarrassment. Outwardly, he seemed still to enjoy the same flow of spirits; but a worm was gnawing at the heart, and his diary at this period discloses a degree of mental anguish and anxiety, which few of those about him suspected. He died at Fulham on the 24th of August, 1841, in his fifty-third year.

WOMEN COURTING MEN.—And why not? Why should all the business of courtship devolve upon man? It is only fair that woman should do her share of the work. Besides many a match that would have proved a happy one has been broken off because the customs of society restrained the woman from saying the right word at the right moment. What is a bashful lover to do, if the lady of his choice will not help him out of the difficulty of popping the question? The fact is, the ladies do perform their share of the courting, not only in semi-civilized communities, as in the instance spoken of below, but in our own enlightened land:

"A most extraordinary custom prevails among the Vizres, a powerful tribe, occupying an extensive district in Cabul, among the mountains, between Persia and India. It is in fact a female prerogative that has no parallel among any other people upon the earth, and reverses what we are in the habit of considering the natural order of things—the women choose their husbands, and not the husband their wives. If a woman be pleased with a man, she sends the drummer of the camp to pin a handkerchief to his cap with the pin she uses to fasten her hair. The drummer watches his opportunity, and does this in public, naming the woman, and the man is obliged to marry her if he can pay the price to her father."

We clip the above from one of our exchanges, but our brother of the quill is mistaken in supposing that "this female prerogative has no parallel among any other people." A custom substantially the same prevails among the Sandwich Islanders. We remember once to have asked a good looking Hawaiian bachelor why he did not get married, and he replied, with a look of innocent simplicity, that "none of the girls had asked him!"—Pacific Monthly.

THE WICKED WRETCHES!—Away down East lived a couple of maiden spinsters of most industrious habits and devoted piety. They devoted themselves unremittingly to toil six days in the week and religiously consecrated the seventh to rest and offices of religion. On Saturday evening Nancy and Polly were plying their knitting needles with more than usual speed, in order to finish at allotted stent before the clock should mark the commencement of holy time. Absorbed in their labor, the minutes passed swiftly by, when Aunt Polly, having completed her stocking, raised her eyes to the clock and perceived she had been working on the Sabbath. Lifting up her hands and eyes heavenward, she exclaimed: "Lord deliver us, sister Nancy—I declare we have committed Sabbry!"

EXTRACT BUCHU,

A POSITIVE AND SPECIFIC REMEDY

FOR DISEASES OF THE

BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL

AND

DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.

This Medicine increases the power of DIGESTION and excites the absorbents into healthy action, by which the WATERY or CALCEROUS depositions, and all UNNATURAL ENLARGEMENTS are reduced, as well as PAIN and INFLAMMATION, and is good for MEN, WOMEN OR CHILDREN.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness arising from Excesses, Habits of Dissipation, Early Indiscretion or Abuse,

ATTENDED WITH THE FOLLOWING SYMPTOMS:

Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Weak Nerves, Horror of Disease, Dimness of Vision, Universal Lassitude of the Limbs, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance, Loss of Power, Difficulty of Breathing, Trembling, Wakefulness, Pain in the Back, Muscular System, Blotches of the Body, Eruptions on the Face.

These symptoms if allowed to go, which this medicine invariably removes, soon follows

Impotency, Fatuity, Epileptic Fits,

IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPECT.

Who can say that they are not frequently followed by those "dreadful diseases,"

"INSANITY AND CONSUMPTION."

Many are aware of the cause of their suffering, but few will confess,

THE RECORDS OF THE INSANE ASYLUMS,

And the melancholy deaths by Consumption bear ample witness to the truth of the assertion that

THE CONSTITUTION,

once affected by Organic Weakness,

Requires the Aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT B

invariably does.
